NANCY TUCHMAN
Dr. Tuchman is the Founding Dean of the Loyola University Chicago Institute of Environmental Sustainability. Her vision for IES is to raise public awareness of the unsustainable consumption of our Earth’s natural resources with the goal of transforming behavior, developing policy, and inspiring and preparing next generation science-based environmental leaders.

MARCIA CATON CAMPBELL
Marcia is Executive Director of the Center for Resilient Cities (CRC). Founded in Madison, Wisconsin, in 1996, CRC cultivates robust and thriving urban communities that are healthy, just, economically viable and environmentally sound. Marcia has over 20 years of experience in community-based planning and food systems planning, research, and practice.

HEDI RUDD
Hedi is an accomplished community leader and storyteller in multiple realms. Since the 1990s, she has been at the forefront of numerous landmark community organizing and racial justice initiatives. She is the director of the Badger Rock Neighborhood Center, a project of the Center for Resilient Cities. She helped to create the Badger Rock Community Market and to increase participation at the monthly Badger Rock CommUNITY Dinners.

SARAH KARLSON
Sarah is the Farm Manager and Garden Educator at the Badger Rock Center, a 2-acre educational urban farm in Madison, Wisconsin. She creates and implements garden-based education for middle school students, community gardeners, and a number of other groups. She also oversees the maintenance and development of the garden and garden programming, and partners with community organizations to address food access issues.
